Barlow Gold!

One day while he was plowing, Francis N. Barlow discovered what appeared to be gold embedded in the rocks that his plow brought to the surface of his field. Some of the rocks were taken to be assayed and it was truly gold. Unfortunately, the amount of gold was small and was deeply embedded in rock. It required considerable effort to extract and after a number of attempts to realize a profit, the mine was given up as a losing proposition.

The gold is probably still there, although any mining attempts would be extremely difficult now. In the 1930's, the entire area, consisting of the towns of Dana, Enfield, Greenwich and Prescott, was purchased by the state and flooded to create the Quabbin Reservoir to supply Boston with water.

Francis N. Barlow was born in 1854, probably at Ware, Massachusetts, and was a son of Henry White Barlow and Emeline Crucy Hill. He was a farmer at Greenwich, in central Massachusetts, where he spent most of his life. He died on August 14, 1912, at Greenwich and was initially buried in the Woodlawn Cemetery at Enfield, Massachusetts. Along with many others, Francis Barlow's gravesite at Enfield was moved to a newly created cemetery, Quabbin Park Cemetery, when the reservoir was built.

More Barlow Gold

Otis P. Barlow was another New Englander who caught the gold fever. He was born on April 22, 1837, at Woodstock, Connecticut, and was a son of Reuben Barlow and Dorcas Converse. While still a very young man he went to California for gold. He not only found gold but managed to resist the many temptations to spend it in California. He started his journey home by sailing from San Francisco to the Isthmus of Panama. There he took a mule train across to the Atlantic side where he boarded the steamer Central America for the final leg of the journey. This was the quickest, most comfortable and most popular way to travel between the two coasts of the United States. A first class cabin cost $300, second class cabin $250, steerage $150, and the trip took about three and one half weeks.

More on John Barlow of Fairfield CT

Jean McNamara of Fairplay, Colorado, has sent a stack of material on John Barlow that she received from an English researcher, Liz Carter. Much of this miscellanea is contained elsewhere in this issue of Barlow of Barlow. Of particular interest here is the correspondence between Miss Carter and two representatives of The College of Arms regarding the supposed right of the immigrant John Barlow of Fairfield, Connecticut, to the Slebetch arms.

It has long been a family legend that Joel Barlow, a descendent of John Barlow, applied for and obtained the right to the arms of the Slebetch/Slebech branch of the Barlow family during one of his many visits to England in the latter years of the eighteenth century. This right was based on Joel's descent, and hence John's descent, from Roger Barlow, the founder of the Slebetch branch. Roger Barlow was granted the Slebetch arms in 1559. (The Barlow arms of the Slebetch branch are carried on the right in the masthead of this newsletter.)

Joel Barlow's right to the Slebetch arms was published in Matthews' American Armoury and Blue Book by John Matthews at London in 1908. It is supposed that John Matthews would have obtained his information from the College of Arms, but this correspondence seems to indicate that he relied only on information supplied by the family from the family tradition.

In his letter of July 14, 1993, to Miss Carter, P. Ll. Gwynn-Jones, M.A., the Lancaster Herald of The College of Arms, wrote "There is nothing in the Records of the College of Arms to support the proposition that Joel Barlow sought and obtained the right to use Arms which were identical with or similar to the Arms of the Slebetch Barlows, or any other Arms. Nor does Joel appear on any pedigree, an inclusion which might have assisted the shedding of light onto this question."

Mr. Gwynn-Jones goes on: "A Barlow who is thought to be his ancestor, William Barlow of Chichester, does appear in the Records, accompanied by the name of his father and names and details of the Bishop's brother (Roger of Slebech); Roger's descendants; the Bishop's wife and one of her daughters by the Bishop."

In a sense, this places the researchers of John Barlow's ancestry back to "square one." The bright side of all this is that it is probably good to get rid of all the misinformation so that we can deal strictly with facts. It may very well be that John Barlow was a descendent of the Slebetch branch and it may be that Joel informally obtained information about his ancestry while in England, but we are confronted with the need for better proof than we now have.

But this trip turned out differently. Two days out of Havana, on September 10, 1857, the Central America was struck by a hurricane and sank off the coast of South Carolina. Otis Barlow and 422 other men perished, many as they tried to save their gold. It has been estimated that the Central America carried three tons of California gold and it has only been as recent as 1989 that any salvage efforts have been successful.

Illinois Public Land Sales

Transaction data for the original public land sales in Illinois from the Illinois Secretary of State and State Archives is presented below. The data includes the buyer's name, the sale date, the amount of land in acres, the location of the parcel and the section number, the township location and meridian (M) used, and the county where the township and parcel were located.

The location of the parcel is abbreviated and the abbreviations used can probably be best explained by example: N, E, S, W, NE, SE, SW and NW are compass direction (north, east, etc.). A section is 640 acres and there are 36 sections in a six-mile square township. Parcels less than a whole section were usually divided by quarter sections (160 acres) and quarter of quarter sections (40 acres). NENW would indicate the northeast quarter of the northwest quarter of the section. N2NE would indicate the northern half of the northeast quarter of the section. Sometimes odd size parcels were designated as numbered lots. A more complete explanation is contained in the Township Atlas of the United States by John L. Andriot, which is available at most libraries.

The latest issue (March-April 1995) of Everton's Genealogical Helper contains an excellent article on family newsletters by Lou Pero. Mr. Pero makes a number of points in his article, and I would like to quote several of these:

"If you take a family newsletter for one year and then drop it because you didn't see your family in it, it's probably because you didn't send it in, and you will have missed the point of the family newsletter."

"The real heart of this type of newsletter [the surname newsletter like ours] is the query, and most want good queries, more than the usual barebones 'named, date, place' query."

"To me, the best help I have received from a family newsletter is the exchange of ideas. The story of one person's successful research may contain some creative strategies that will make a difference in another person's research."

Alexander Barlow of Pocahontas County, West Virginia

First Generation

Alexander Barlow emigrated from France and settled initially in Bath County, Virginia, according to The History of Pocahontas County, West Virginia. At some point he moved to Pocahontas County where his child was born. He was killed in the Revolutionary War.

Alexander Barlow married Barbara ---- who had emigrated from England. After Alexander's death she married second Henry Casebolt. Alexander and Barbara had one child: John Barlow.

Second Generation

John Barlow was born on November 26, 1781, in Pocahontas County. He was a farmer and was recorded in Pocahontas County in the 1830-1860 censuses. He died on January 23, 1866, probably at his home at Edray.

John Barlow married Martha Waddell. Their marriage was recorded on December 18, 1804, in Bath County and on December 4, 1806, in Pocahontas County. She was born around 1790 and was a daughter of Alexander Waddell of Greenbriar in Pocahontas County. She died on October 7, 1872, at age 82. Their children were:

- i. William Barlow was born in 1806.

- vi. Josiah Barlow was born in 1825.
- vii. Henry Barlow was born in 1827-8.
- viii. Mary Ann Barlow was born on November 17, 1828, at Edray. She married James Aldridge.
- ix. Amos Barlow was born in 1830.
- x. Ellen Barlow died at age 4 years.
- xi. infant daughter, died in infancy.
- xii. George Barlow, of whom nothing further is yet known.
- xiii. Andrew Barlow, of whom nothing further is yet known.
- xiv. Elizabeth Barlow married William Baxter in 1833.
- xv. Miriam Barlow married Samuel Aldridge in 1834.

Third Generation

William Barlow was born in 1806. He and his family moved west and he was in Michigan in 1831-2 when his son was born. He finally settled in Fabius Township, Schuyler County, Missouri, where he was recorded as a farmer in the 1850 and 1860 censuses. He married Deborah ---- who was born in 1811-2 in Virginia. Their child was:

- i. Nathan Barlow was born in 1831-2 in Michigan.

Alexander Barlow was born in 1807 [1850 census] or 1816 [1860 census]. He was recorded in Pocahontas County in the 1840 through 1860 censuses. He married Mary ---- [probably Dilley]. She was born in 1816-7 in Virginia and their children were:

- i. Westley Barlow was born in 1840-1.

- ii. John H. Barlow was born in 1842.

- iii. Andrew D. Barlow was born in 1844. He was perhaps the A. D. Barlow who married Jennie Belle Russell, a daughter of C. W. Russell, in 1874 in Randolph County, West Virginia. Their children were: Hattie C. Barlow, Willis D. Barlow, Agnes Barlow, Mattie Barlow, Russell Barlow and Ralph Barlow.

- iv. Elizabeth Barlow was born in 1845-6.

- vii. Mary E. Barlow was born in 1850.

- viii. Michael A. Barlow was born in 1854.

- ix. Margaret A. Barlow was born in 1856.

John Barlow was born in 1820. He was recorded in Pocahontas County in the 1850 census and he moved across the Ohio River to Gallia County, Ohio, soon after. He died in 1858 in Schuyler County, Missouri.

John Barlow married Emily Ewing, who was born September 11, 1820, in either Virginia [1850 census] or Missouri [1860 census]. She was recorded at Walnut Township, Gallia County, in the 1860 census. She died on May 12, 1893, and was buried in the Old Walnut Ridge Cemetary at Walnut Township. Their children were:

- i. Martha A. Barlow was born in 1843.

- ii. Sarah J. Barlow was born in 1844-5.

- iii. William E. Barlow was born in 1847. In 1868 he married Elizabeth J. Sanders who was born in 1849 and who was a daughter of Joseph and Sarah (Sheets) Sanders.

iv. Nancy S. Barlow was born in May 1850.

v. Henry Barlow was born in 1852.

vi. James Barlow was born in 1855.

Nathan G. Barlow was born in 1824 and was recorded in Pocahontas County in the 1850 and 1860 censuses. He married Jennetta Allen, who was born in 1824-5, on December 18, 1845, in Pendleton County, Virginia. Their children were:

i. Staunton C. Barlow was born in 1847.

ii. Samuel N. Barlow was born in 1848.

A note about missing issues

Barlow of Barlow is published quarterly and issues are scheduled for February, May, August and November. I try to complete each issue by the first of the publication month and get it in the mail by the middle of the month.

So far I have had very few delivery problems, but there have been some. We have a good postal system in this country in spite of all the griping that we are all inclined to do about it. If for any reason you do not receive an issue by the end of the scheduled publication month, please let me know so that a replacement can be promptly sent to you.

The Internet

As many of you undoubtedly know, the Internet, the so-called information superhighway, is a wonderful tool for genealogists. The Illinois Public Land Sales Records on page 181 of this issue were extracted from a database available from the University of Illinois at Chicago on the Internet. And there is more. The Kentucky Vital Records are available on a very large database provided by the University of Kentucky and include death records from 1911 to 1992, marriage records from 1973 to 1993, and divorce records from 1973 to 1993. Card catalogs from the major libraries of the world are available, including the Library of Congress, the New York Public Library and the libraries of many universities. And the information that is available keeps expanding on an almost daily basis.

Another valuable resource of the Internet is electronic mail or E-mail and, again, genealogists are catching on to this new means of communication. E-mail combines the better qualities of the letter with the speed of the telephone. Thoughts can be carefully chosen, data can be included and the recipient has a permanent paper copy of a message that took, at most, minutes to transmit.

Barlow of Barlow may be contacted at barlowpa@metronet.lib.mi.us and I hope that this may prove to be a convenience for our readers.
